EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

OVERALL FINDINGS

ATTITUDE → 72.1% Staff warmth, engagement, eye contact, recovery	FACILITY → 75.5% Presentation, cleanliness, signage, equipment	PROCESS → 76.7% Speed, accuracy, systems, compliance procedure	SALES → 14.3% Upsell attempts, commercial opportunity taken
--	--	--	---

How these are built. Every individual criterion scored across all ten touchpoints is tagged into one of these four categories. The percentage is the average of every criterion in that category, regardless of which touchpoint it came from. Sales sits dramatically below the other three, not because anything was done badly, but because the commercial opportunity was simply not taken, at the booking call, in the confirmation, and in front of seven other families during the party itself.

TOUCHPOINT	SCORE	PERFORMANCE	RATING
01 Reservation Call	7.8/10		STRONG
02 Booking Confirmation	7.0/10		NEEDS WORK
03 Arrival & First Impressions	8.3/10		STRONG
04 Welcome & Staff Engagement	7.3/10		NEEDS WORK
05 Party Room, Host & Celebration	6.6/10		NEEDS WORK
06 Cleanliness & Presentation	7.8/10		STRONG
07 Safety & Compliance	9.0/10		EXCELLENT
08 F&B Experience	5.0/10		NEEDS WORK
09 Queue Management & Signage	4.2/10		CRITICAL
10 Departure & Final Impressions	6.7/10		NEEDS WORK

How scoring works. Every touchpoint is built from a series of specific, individually-scored criteria, ranging from six to twenty-three per section depending on complexity, based on exactly what was said, timed, counted or observed. The booking call and confirmation are assessed first, since the guest's experience of your business begins long before they arrive. With ten touchpoints assessed, more issues are identified than the five shown in the WAM 5 on page 3. That's deliberate. The WAM 5 is a selection, not a list of everything.

THE WAM 5: AT A GLANCE

THE WAM 5: AT A GLANCE

The five priorities that will move the needle most. This is not a ranked list. Every priority below matters. Full detail, recommended actions, owners and timeframes begin on page 14.

- 01 Build Commercial Conversations Into Every Stage of the Party Journey. Sales scored 14.3%, the only category below half marks, with zero upsell attempts across the booking call, the confirmation, and the party itself.
- 02 Introduce Queue Management at the Two Busiest Attractions. The lowest-scoring touchpoint in the report at 4.2/10. No queue system led directly to a dispute between children.
- 03 Resource the Café for Peak Periods. An 11-minute wait and a missing item both trace to one cause: a single staff member running the till and food prep together.
- 04 Close the Loop on Party Bookings at Departure. The birthday was warmly acknowledged at the booking stage, but never referenced again, not at arrival and not on the way out.
- 05 Standardise the "Proactive Welcome" Across All Zones. The right standard already exists. Two of three tested staff interactions were excellent. It simply isn't applied consistently.

01 RESERVATION CALL

7.8
OVERALL / 10

REASON FOR CALL	CALLS REQUIRED	TIME OF CALL	STAFF MEMBER
Birthday party enquiry, 8 children	One	11:15	Female, identified as "Sara"

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Connection speed	P	10/10	Answered within 3 rings
Salutation	A	10/10	Full greeting given, venue name and staff name stated clearly
Tone & manner	A	9/10	Warm and friendly throughout the call
Established nature of enquiry	P	10/10	Asked number of children and age range immediately
Package options explained	P	7/10	Explained 2 of 3 available party packages; premium package not mentioned
Pricing quoted	P	10/10	Clear per-child pricing given without being asked twice
Upsell of add-ons	S	0/10	No mention of extended play time, party host, or photo package
Availability check	P	10/10	Checked diary live on the call, offered two date options
Previous visit enquiry	A	0/10	Did not ask if the family had visited before
Dietary / allergy enquiry	P	10/10	Proactively asked if any children had allergies
Deposit / payment explained	P	10/10	Clearly explained deposit required to secure the date
Overall closure	A	10/10	Thanked caller, confirmed next steps, offered further help

A confident, well-handled call overall. Pricing, availability and dietary needs were all covered without prompting. The two zero scores are both missed commercial opportunities rather than service failures: no attempt was made to upsell the premium package or any add-ons, and no rapport-building question about prior visits was asked.

Why this matters: This call is the first impression of the business, and it's also the first sales opportunity. The service was warm enough to book the standard package, but the absence of any upsell attempt is pure margin left on the table, on every single party booking.

02 BOOKING CONFIRMATION

7.0
OVERALL / 10

RECEIVED VIA	TIME RECEIVED	FORMAT	REMINDER PROMISED
Email	14 minutes after the call	Email with PDF attachment	None mentioned

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Timing of confirmation	P	10/10	Received within 15 minutes of the call
Correct grammar & spelling	P	10/10	No errors found
Booking details accuracy	P	10/10	Date, time and package matched the call exactly
Terms & conditions included	P	10/10	Cancellation policy and outside-food policy both included
Parking information	P	0/10	No mention of parking location or validation
Arrival instructions	P	10/10	Clear instructions on where to check in for the party
Dress code / footwear policy	P	10/10	Socks-only policy for soft play clearly stated
Upsell / promotion in confirmation	S	0/10	No mention of optional extras or photo packages
Payment / deposit instructions	P	10/10	Secure payment link included for the deposit
Pre-arrival reminder promised	P	0/10	No mention of a reminder closer to the date

The confirmation itself is accurate, fast and professional. Everything a guest needs to know about arrival, dress code and policy is there. What's missing is everything commercial and everything reassuring: no parking guidance, no reminder closer to the date, and a second missed opportunity to upsell that wasn't taken at the booking stage either.

Why this matters: A parent organising an 8-child birthday party is anxious about logistics. Parking guidance and a pre-arrival reminder cost nothing to add and directly reduce day-of-event stress, exactly the kind of detail that turns a one-off booking into a returning family.

03 ARRIVAL & FIRST IMPRESSIONS

8.3
OVERALL / 10

VISIT TYPE	ARRIVAL TIME	STAFF MEMBER	GUESTS IN QUEUE
Unannounced, weekend afternoon	14:05	Male, security/host desk	Approx. 8 at ticketing

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Exterior & car park presentation	F	9/10	Clean, well-lit, clearly marked bays, no litter observed
Signage to main entrance	F	8/10	Clear directional signage; one sign partially faded
Entrance greeting	A	9/10	Genuine, unscripted greeting, warm tone, good eye contact
Ticketing speed	P	7/10	2 min 40 sec during moderate footfall, acceptable but not fast
Second till opened at peak	P	9/10	Second staff member called over once queue reached 6
Accessibility at entry	F	8/10	Ramp present and clear; doors heavy, no staff assist offered
Welcome consistency with booking	P	8/10	Staff correctly found the pre-booked party reservation on arrival

Arrival sets a strong tone, and the booking made over the phone translated cleanly into a smooth check-in. The heavy entrance doors remain the one physical obstacle for guests managing strollers or multiple children unassisted, despite the host stand sitting in direct line of sight.

Why this matters: The continuity between the booking call and arrival, staff correctly finding the reservation without confusion, is a genuine operational strength worth protecting as party volume grows.

04 WELCOME & STAFF ENGAGEMENT

7.3

ZONES TESTED	INTERACTIONS TESTED	UNIFORM STANDARD	NAME BADGES
Entrance, soft play, climbing wall	3 separate staff members	Consistent across all zones	Visible on all 3 staff tested

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Eye contact & verbal greeting	A	8/10	2 of 3 tested interactions had genuine eye contact and a question asked
Proactive offer of help	A	6/10	No staff proactively offered directions; all info had to be requested
Staff appearance	A	8/10	Clean, consistent uniforms, badges visible throughout
Consistency across zones	A	7/10	Climbing zone noticeably weaker than the other two tested
Engagement with children directly	A	8/10	Soft play attendant spoke directly to the children, not just the parent
Recovery from distraction	A	7/10	Climbing attendant mid-conversation with colleague; took 8 seconds to disengage

The standard exists and was observed twice out of three tests, including a nice detail: a soft play attendant addressing the children directly rather than only the accompanying adult. The climbing zone interaction was the clear outlier, and no staff member anywhere proactively offered directions or guidance without being asked first.

Why this matters: This reads as a reinforcement issue, not a training gap. The desired behaviour clearly exists in the building already. The task is spreading it consistently, not teaching it from scratch.

05 PARTY ROOM, HOST & CELEBRATION

6.6
OVERALL / 10

PARTY ROOM		HOST		PARTY START TIME		OTHER FAMILIES PRESENT
"Coral Room", 8 children + 6 adults		Female, identified as "Priya"		14:30 (booked slot)		7, all parents in the room
CRITERION		CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Room size & capacity for party size		F	9/10	Comfortable space for 8 children plus accompanying adults
Decorations, themed and age-appropriate		F	8/10	On-theme balloons and banners, attractive setup
Room cleanliness before group entry		F	9/10	Spotless and fully reset from the previous booking
Table setup pre-prepared on arrival		P	8/10	Plates, cups and party hats already laid out when the group arrived
Host arrival & introduction		A	9/10	Warm, enthusiastic introduction to the whole group, not just the parent
Games organised & age-appropriate		P	8/10	Good variety, matched well to the age range of the group
Host engagement with all children, not just celebrant		A	6/10	Noticeably more attention given to the two loudest children
Host energy & enthusiasm throughout		A	9/10	Maintained energy across the full session, didn't flatten by the end
Timing management against the schedule		P	7/10	Ran 10 minutes over the booked slot
Handling of a conflict between children		A	8/10	One dispute over a game handled calmly and fairly
Food served in the party room		P	9/10	All food brought to the room, no need to queue elsewhere
Package food options explained to parent		P	8/10	Options talked through clearly at the point of booking confirmation
Vegetarian / dietary option proactively offered		P	4/10	Available but only provided after the parent specifically asked
Food quality		F	7/10	Good quality, age-appropriate portions
Food served on time		P	7/10	Arrived 8 minutes after the party officially started
Celebrant acknowledgement (badge / sash / crown)		A	9/10	Birthday child given a sash on arrival, visibly delighted
Birthday song led by host		A	10/10	Enthusiastically led, all children joined in
Celebrant given a small gift or memento		A	8/10	A small goodie bag specific to the celebrant, separate from guest bags
Celebrant photo opportunity offered		A	7/10	Host offered to take a photo, but only after being asked
Repeat visit offer made to attending families		S	0/10	No mention made to any parent of returning for a standard visit
Future party package promoted to other parents		S	0/10	Despite 7 other families present, no party package was mentioned to any of them
Take-home flyer or voucher given to each family		S	2/10	One flyer left on a side table; not handed individually to any parent
Contact details collected from other parents		S	0/10	No attempt made to capture contact details for future marketing

The room, host and treatment of the birthday child were all genuinely strong, exactly the kind of experience that justifies the package price and brings a family back. The complete absence of any commercial follow-through is the story here. Seven other families sat in that room for forty-five minutes, and not one was offered a return visit, a party package, or even a flyer handed to them directly.

Why this matters: A birthday party is the single highest-leverage sales moment in the entire FEC calendar. A captive room of exactly the right audience, already in a positive emotional state. Leaving it untouched three times over (the booking call, the confirmation, and now the party itself) isn't a training gap, it's a structural gap in how the journey is designed.

06 CLEANLINESS & PRESENTATION

7.8
OVERALL / 10

RESTROOMS CHECKED	ZONES INSPECTED	BINS CHECKED	TIME OF INSPECTION
Twice, 45 mins apart	Main play, toddler zone, F&B seating	4 locations	14:20 & 15:05

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Main play areas & circulation	F	9/10	Clean and well-maintained throughout the full visit
Restroom standard, 1st check	F	9/10	Fully stocked and presentable at 14:20
Restroom standard, 2nd check	F	6/10	Paper towel dispenser empty at 15:05, 45 min later
Equipment & soft play condition	F	8/10	Generally good; minor wear visible on toddler zone padding
General tidiness	F	7/10	One overflowing bin near F&B seating during peak period
Bin capacity vs. footfall	F	8/10	3 of 4 bins checked were appropriately sized; F&B zone bin undersized

The two-check restroom test was specifically designed to test consistency over time, not just a single snapshot, and it found exactly that kind of gap. Excellent at the first check, one specific failure 45 minutes later. This points to a restocking schedule issue during busier periods rather than a one-off oversight.

Why this matters: Cleanliness failures are noticed disproportionately to their frequency. One empty dispenser can outweigh an hour of otherwise spotless presentation in a guest's overall impression.

07 SAFETY & COMPLIANCE

9.0
OVERALL / 10

HEIGHT CHECKS OBSERVED

3 instances

SUPERVISION POINTS CHECKED

4 zones

FIRE EXITS CHECKED

3 of 3 on route

FIRST AID POINT

Located near reception

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Height/age restriction enforcement	P	10/10	Correctly checked and enforced across all 3 observed instances
Active staff supervision	A	9/10	Staff maintained active sightlines, repositioning to keep visibility
First aid & emergency signage	F	10/10	Visible, current, correctly positioned throughout
Fire exit visibility	F	9/10	One exit sign partially obscured by a promotional banner
Staff response to a height-restricted child	A	8/10	Politely but firmly redirected despite mild parental pushback
Equipment safety checks visible	P	8/10	Staff observed checking harness/clips before climbing wall use

The strongest-performing touchpoint of the entire visit, including the booking call. Supervision behaviour in particular, staff actively scanning and repositioning rather than standing passively, is exactly the standard worth using as an internal benchmark elsewhere on site.

Why this matters: This is the standard to protect and replicate, not to fix. The single deduction, a banner obscuring an exit sign, is a five-minute correction.

08 F&B EXPERIENCE

5.0
OVERALL / 10ORDER PLACED
14:40ORDER RECEIVED
14:51 (11 min wait)STAFF ON TILL
1 (2 others visible on floor)ORDER
2 items, 1 missing on collection

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Order wait time	P	4/10	11 minutes from joining the line to receiving food
Staffing during peak	P	3/10	2 further staff visible on floor, not redirected to support till
Order accuracy	P	5/10	1 of 2 items missing; corrected only after guest raised it
Recovery from order error	A	5/10	Corrected promptly but no apology or compensation offered
Food quality & presentation	F	6/10	Acceptable but unremarkable
Seating availability at peak	F	7/10	Several uncleared tables reduced available seating

The 11-minute wait and missing item trace back to the same root cause: one staff member running both till and food prep simultaneously, while two further colleagues remained visible elsewhere on the floor. This is a staffing-allocation issue, not a kitchen or menu problem.

Why this matters: F&B disproportionately defines a guest's overall rating of the day. The lowest-scoring criteria here both share one fix: moving staff to the till during known peak windows.

09 QUEUE MANAGEMENT & SIGNAGE

4.2
OVERALL / 10

ATTRACTIONS TESTED	WAIT-TIME SIGNAGE	DIRECTIONS REQUESTED	TIME LOST TO CONFUSION
Main slide, trampoline zone	None present	3 staff members, 1 family	~6 minutes, 1 instance

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Wait-time indicators	F	3/10	None present at either of the two busiest attractions
Queue structure & order	P	4/10	Informal, self-organised; visible guest frustration observed
Dispute mediation	A	2/10	No staff present when a queue dispute broke out between two groups of children
Directional signage between zones	F	4/10	Present at zone entrances only, absent at decision points between
Staff availability for directions	A	5/10	Helpful when asked, but had to be actively sought out
Wayfinding to restrooms specifically	F	7/10	Eventually found after asking 3 staff members

The clearest and most significant gap identified anywhere in this evaluation, including the booking journey. No queue system at either popular attraction led directly to a dispute between two groups of children, with no staff present to mediate.

Why this matters: This single touchpoint is the strongest driver of the overall score sitting below the otherwise strong booking, arrival and safety performance. It's also one of the cheapest to fix.

10 DEPARTURE & FINAL IMPRESSIONS

6.7
OVERALL / 10

DEPARTURE TIME	STAFF AT EXIT	FEEDBACK MECHANISM	RETAIL KIOSK
16:35	None observed	QR code, entrance only	Staffed, well-stocked

CRITERION	CAT.	SCORE	OBSERVATION
Staff presence near exit	A	5/10	No staff member visible to thank guests or assist on exit
Retail kiosk experience	S	8/10	Well-stocked, friendly, low-pressure upselling approach
Feedback mechanism visibility	P	7/10	QR code present at entrance only, not reinforced at exit
Party-specific farewell	A	4/10	No acknowledgement of the birthday occasion on departure
Belongings / lost property check	A	8/10	Staff proactively asked if all belongings had been collected
Overall closing impression	A	8/10	Functional and efficient, but unremarkable relative to arrival

A specific, avoidable miss: the party booking that was acknowledged warmly at the reservation stage was never referenced again on the way out. The emotional thread set up by the booking call was dropped well before the visit ended.

Why this matters: Departure is the last impression carried into a decision to return. For a birthday party specifically, a simple "hope they had a great birthday" closes a loop that was opened on the phone three weeks earlier.

THE WAM 5

Five themes, selected from ten assessed touchpoints, that will move the needle most. Each one ranges from a fast, free fix to a genuine investment. This is not a ranked order. Every theme below matters.

01 BUILD A COMMERCIAL ENGINE AROUND EVERY PARTY BOOKING

THE FINDING

The same gap appears three separate times across the guest journey. There was no upsell attempt on the booking call. There was no upsell mention in the written confirmation that followed. And most strikingly, no repeat visit offer or party package promotion was made to any of the seven other families who sat in the party room for forty five minutes. Sales is the only category to score below 50% anywhere in this report, landing at 14.3%, while Attitude, Facility and Process all scored above 70%. This is not a few staff members missing a trick. It is a structural gap in how the booking and party journey has been designed.

THINK

QUICK WINS

- Add one upsell line to the booking script and the confirmation template. A premium package or a single add on, offered once, with no pressure attached.
- Give the party host a single closing line to use with parents as they collect their children, a return visit offer and a take home flyer, handed individually rather than left on a side table.
- Capture contact details from at least the parents who ask questions during the party, so there is a list to follow up with afterwards.

BIGGER PLAYS

- Invest in proper booking and CRM software with built-in upsell prompts and automated follow-up sequences, rather than relying on staff remembering to ask.
- Create a dedicated party sales or events coordinator role, responsible for converting every booking enquiry into a fuller package and every party into a repeat visit.
- Redesign the party packages themselves so a richer package is the default presented option, with a simpler one available on request, rather than the simplest package being the default with extras bolted on.

02 BUILD REAL QUEUE CAPACITY AT THE BUSIEST ATTRACTIONS

THE FINDING

This was the lowest scoring touchpoint in the entire evaluation at 4.2 out of 10. No wait time indicator was present at either the main slide or the trampoline zone, the two most popular attractions on site. This led directly to a dispute between two groups of children over whose turn it was next, with no staff member present to mediate. Guests do not experience a venue as a set of individual scores. They experience it as a single afternoon, and an unmanaged queue at the busiest point of that afternoon can undo a lot of good work elsewhere.

THINK

QUICK WINS

- Install a simple wait time sign at both attractions. Even a manually updated whiteboard estimate is a significant improvement over having nothing at all.
- Assign a queue host during identified peak windows, most likely weekend afternoons, to structure the line and step in before disputes start.
- Mark the queue path physically with stanchions or floor markings, so the line itself communicates order without staff needing to intervene constantly.

BIGGER PLAYS

- Invest in a proper queue management or virtual ticketing system for the two busiest attractions, giving guests a real time slot rather than a physical line to stand in.
- Permanently redesign the queue areas with proper stanchions, shade and signage, rather than treating queuing as an afterthought of the attraction itself.
- Install digital wait-time displays at both attractions, linked to actual throughput, rather than relying on manually updated estimates long-term.

03 BUILD REAL CAFÉ CAPACITY FOR PEAK PERIODS

THE FINDING

An eleven minute wait and a missing item from a two item order both trace back to the same root cause. A single staff member was running the till and food preparation simultaneously, while two further colleagues remained visible elsewhere on the floor and were not redirected to support. This is a staffing and workflow issue rather than a kitchen quality problem, which is genuinely good news, because the fix is about how peak periods are resourced, not about retraining the team or changing the menu.

THINK

QUICK WINS

- Build a peak hours rota that moves a second staff member onto the till during the windows already known to be busiest.
- Introduce a simple order check before trays leave the counter, so missing items are caught before the guest notices rather than after.
- Give the colleagues seen elsewhere on the floor during the rush a standing instruction to step in when the till queue builds, rather than leaving that decision to individual judgement.

BIGGER PLAYS

- Invest in a second till and the permanent staffing to run it during known peak windows, rather than treating peak capacity as a rota patch.
- Review the kitchen workflow and equipment itself, to confirm whether prep bottlenecks are compounding the staffing issue, not just masking it.
- Introduce a simplified, faster-to-execute peak-hours menu, available only during the busiest windows, without reducing quality on the full menu at other times.

04 MAKE EVERY GUEST RELATIONSHIP OUTLAST THE VISIT

THE FINDING

The birthday was acknowledged warmly at the booking stage. A sash was given on arrival, the host led the birthday song with real enthusiasm, and a small gift was given to the celebrant separately from the other children's goodie bags. None of that warmth carried through to departure. No staff member referenced the occasion again on the way out, and the emotional thread built up over three weeks, from the original phone call through to the party itself, was simply left to fade rather than being closed properly.

THINK

QUICK WINS

- Flag party bookings in the daily briefing, so any staff member working the floor that day knows there is an occasion to reference.
- Give whoever is near the exit during a party departure a single line to use, something as simple as asking whether the birthday child had a good day.
- Add a pre arrival reminder to the confirmation journey, including parking guidance, so the same attentiveness shown at booking is visible again just before the visit.

BIGGER PLAYS

- Invest in a guest recognition or CRM system that tracks repeat families across visits, so a returning celebrant is genuinely remembered, not just logged.
- Build a structured post-visit follow-up sequence, email or SMS, with a specific return-visit incentive tied to the occasion just celebrated.
- Introduce a loyalty or membership programme with real, trackable rewards for repeat bookings, rather than relying on goodwill alone to bring families back.

05 MAKE EVERY STAFF INTERACTION REFLECT THE BRAND PROMISE

THE FINDING

Two of the three staff interactions tested during this visit were genuinely excellent. Staff at the entrance and in the soft play zone made real eye contact, smiled, and asked an open question rather than offering a scripted greeting. The third interaction, at the climbing zone, fell noticeably short, with the attendant absorbed in conversation with a colleague. The standard guests deserve already exists inside this business. It was demonstrated twice during a single visit. The gap is a question of consistency, not capability.

THINK

QUICK WINS

- Use the entrance and soft play interactions as the internal benchmark in the next team briefing, showing the team what good already looks like.
- Introduce light touch peer spot checks between zones, so the standard is reinforced socially day to day, not only during a formal review.
- Rotate staff across zones periodically, so the same person is not always assigned to the area regardless of how that zone happens to be performing.

BIGGER PLAYS

- Build a formal onboarding curriculum for new hires, so the standard does not depend on which specific staff member happens to be on shift.
- Introduce a shift-lead structure with clear accountability for standards, so consistency has a named owner during every shift, not just a hoped-for outcome.
- Run a structured, recurring internal mystery-shop programme, so consistency gaps like this one are caught between formal external reviews, not only during them.

This is what a genuine evaluation looks like. Ten touchpoints, from the first phone call to departure. Specific, evidenced findings, not vague impressions, converted into five themes that each carry a fast fix and a real investment, not just one or the other.

CLOSING ASSESSMENT

CUSTOMER SERVICE TRACKER

DID THE OVERALL EXPERIENCE REPRESENT GOOD VALUE FOR MONEY?

Yes, on balance. The party package itself is fairly priced for what's included, and the strong arrival and safety experience reinforces that. The two commercial misses identified in this report, no upsell on the booking call and none in the confirmation, mean the business is actually leaving value on the table for itself here, not overcharging the guest.

LIKELIHOOD TO RECOMMEND

A strong 7, not higher. The booking process, safety standards and overall warmth of the team would have me recommending this without hesitation. The unmanaged queue at the two most popular attractions is the one experience that would make me pause before telling a friend with excitable young children to expect a smooth visit.

STAFF RECOGNITION

Two individual contributions stood out enough during this visit to call out by name.

Priya (Party Host)

Led the celebration with real enthusiasm from start to finish, including a birthday song that had every child joining in. Engaged the whole group on arrival, not just the parent who made the booking.

Entrance Host (Male, Security/Greeting Role, Name Not Captured)

Gave a warm, unscripted welcome on arrival rather than a scripted line, setting a genuinely positive tone for the visit before a single ticket was purchased.

ADDITIONAL COMMENTS

This was a genuinely enjoyable visit built on a strong foundation. The booking call set a warm tone that mostly carried through to arrival, and the team's safety standards are some of the best I've assessed recently. The gaps identified here are specific and fixable rather than systemic: a queue sign, a staffing reshuffle at the till, one extra line in a booking script. None of this requires a culture change. It requires focused execution on five things.
